APPEALS ARE TAKEN GOT THE MAXIMUM

Property Owners Make Another Attempt to Stop the Railroad Co.

Appeal the Condemnation Suits From County Court and Take Out Supersedeas.

RAILROAD WILL IGNORE IT

Several of the property owners whose property has been condemned by the Illinois Central through county court, for right of way in building the Cairo extension, today took another tack by appealing the cases from county court. It was generally expected that the railroad would appeal them, as some of the property owners were awarded about twice as much as the appraisers gave them, but was not thought that the property owners would take appeals.

Those who took appeals were: H. M. Rottgering, who was given $1500 by the appraisers and $3000 by the jury; R. L. Potter, $2500; Exom Futrell, $3000; and Mrs. Liebel and Fenwick.

In appealing the cases the property owners took out a supersedeas in each case and executed bond, but the railroad company will ignore them and proceed with the work on the right of way.

The object of the supersedeas is to stop the work and force the railroad company to pay the amounts to the property owners and get shut of them in order to proceed with the work. The railroad company, however, will ignore the supersedeas and go ahead with the work just the same, and disinterested attorneys say it will not be guilty of a contempt of court, and will only be liable for what damages may accrue from disobeying the supersedeas.

The appeals taken this morning take the cases into circuit court, and if they are decided against the property owners will throw all the costs on them.

It is understood that the property owners took this step because Judge Lightfoot, in his opinion, decided that the money awarded them was to be paid into court and not to the property owners, until after the courts have finally settled on the amounts.

Pinckney Childers Sentenced to 12 Months in Jail for Petty Larceny

Charged With Selling Furniture That Did Not Belong to Him This Morning.

WAS A MUCH SURPRISED MAN

Pinckney Childers was a very much surprised young man this morning when he was tried before Judge Lightfoot in the county court for petty larceny and sentenced to twelve months in the county jail, the maximum penalty for the offense.

Several months ago Pinckney is alleged to have been living with a woman named Cook in the same house with a man named Berger. The man owned the furniture, but that didn't make any difference to Pinckney. One day the owner failed to go home, and when he did show up he found that Pinckney and the girl had sold out the furniture to a second hand dealer for $4.

A warrant was issued against Childers, but he disappeared and did not return until a few days ago, when he was arrested and locked up.

Judge Lightfoot sentenced him to twelve months in jail, principally because Pinckney is a very incorrigible character and it takes lots to make any impression on him and partly because Judge Lightfoot says he is determined to break up petty thieving if he has to give them all twelve months.

Pinckney has always been singularly fortunate in his misdeeds. He has been to the penitentiary twice, and was pardoned each time, and managed to get in jail the first thing after he was released both times. The four dollars' worth of furniture he sold will doubtless cause him many regrets. Childers' father came near being fined this morning for contempt of court in making sike remarks about the court.

AND THE TOWN WAS WILD.

Spokane, Wash., August 7.—When the sheriff with the body of Tracy drove through Davenport this morning hundreds of persons followed it up the streets and crowded about the wagon. By the time the morgue was reached the throng was immense, and from every quarter could be heard "Three Shouts For Lincoln County." The town was wild. The morgue doors had to be closed and the crowd asked to stand back. Several persons wanted to see the body, and then the trouble began. Everyone wanted relics, and in a short time nothing was left except the body. Some even picked up and carried away the blood stained handkerchief used by the outlaw to keep from bleeding to death.

ROBBED TICKET OFFICE.

Russellville, August 7.—Two unknown white men entered the L. and N. depot at an early hour this morning and blindfolding the night operator, I. D. Withers, looked him in a refrigerator car several hundred feet down the tracks and returning robbed the ticket office of about $25.

PRESIDENT RETURNS HOME.

Washington, August 7.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt this morning reached home at 7:15 o'clock on board the Sylph from Gardiner's Bay.

MARRIED IN A BUGGY.

Hopkinsville, August 7.—Hicks Dean and Miss Mary Almy were married here last night while seated in a buggy, County Judge Fowler officiating.

A SICKENING DISASTER

Horror of Yesterday's Accident at Dawson Was Not Exaggerated.

THE DEAD.

MISS JOHNNIE SMITH, 1228 Berneheim avenue, city.

MRS. LINNIS STEVENSON, wife of L. E. Stevenson, a farmer of Hickory Grove.

THE INJURED.

B. F. FLINT, a car repairer, left hand slightly bruised and cut, and his daughter, LENA FLINT, aged 12, broken right arm.

MISS EDITH STEVENSON, aged 12, daughter of Mrs. L. E. Stevenson, nose broken and internally injured.

MISS ANNIE NICKLES, aged about 26, of Lowes Cross Roads, left leg crushed, necessitating amputation.

The news of yesterday's terrible accident near Dawson Springs to a crowd of the picnic party that left Paducah on the I. C. special train early yesterday morning created the greatest excitement in Paducah when the Sun made its appearance on the streets with the first information received of it. Hundreds of people had friends or relatives in the crowd, and there was a great deal of suspense until the details of the disaster were received later.

The harrowing catastrophe was not in the least exaggerated. In fact, the scene after the carnage was one that baffled description. It was one that will be indelibly impressed for life on the memories of those who saw it, for it was sickening in its horror.

It was shortly after noon that a party of the picnicers composed of the above started to walk from the grounds to Dawson. They crossed one trestle, but were nearly in the center of the other one, a structure about 350 feet long not far from the station at Dawson, and fourteen feet high, when the second section of 182, from Paducah to Louisville, going at a rapid rate bore down upon them.

It was in charge of Conductor Coles and Engineer Bean, and while the railroad men claim the picnic party heard the train, others say that no whistle was blown at the crossing because the whistle was broken.

Engineer Bean attempted to stop the train by putting on the air and reversing the engine, but the cars made the momentum so great that the train thundered on in its mission of destruction.

The party on the trestle seemed panic stricken. They lost presence of mind, or all could have been saved by jumping. Instead of going the easiest way they ran helter skelter towards the other end. Two jumped, Miss Smith, Mrs. Stephenson and Miss Nickles remaining on the track until the train struck them.

The six had just gone upon the bridge to cross, and when the middle of the trestle was reached their attention was attracted to the train, which they had failed to hear coming. From several who saw the accident from a distance, it appears that the women, becoming wild with fright, ran terror-stricken in the direction of the train, instead of towards the other end, which was nearer.

Mr. Flint grabbed up his little 8-year-old daughter, Fredonia, and dropped down from the trestle, holding the little girl in one arm while he hung to the ties with the other. When the train passed he pulled himself up and set his daughter down uninjured. His other daughter was told to jump, which she did, the jump resulting in a broken arm. The little Stevenson girl was struck just as she was preparing to jump, and her nose was broken and her body badly bruised by the fall. She has been in a stupor ever since the accident happened, but rallied this morning and called for her mother, not knowing that she had been killed. Her mother's death will be kept from her until she has sufficiently improved to be able to bear the news. As yet the physicians have been unable to determine whether or not the child is internally injured, and are inclined to believe she is.

Miss Nickles was struck by the train, and knew nothing of the accident and subsequent events until this morning, when she awoke to the fact that her left foot had been amputated just above the ankle. She does not know that any others were injured, and killed, and thinks she is the only one injured. The nurses at the hospital have not permitted

HON. I. M. QUIGLEY AFTER AN OPINION

One of Paducah's Foremost Lawyers Died at Dawson Last Evening.

Had Been Ill for Quite a While from a Complication of Diseases.

OTHER DEATHS AND FUNERALS

Hon. Isaac M. Quigley, former judge of the court of appeals of Kentucky, a member of the house of representatives of Kentucky and one of the most prominent attorneys in Southwest Kentucky, died at 6 o'clock last evening at Dawson Springs, after a long illness from locomotor ataxia, inflammatory rheumatism and dropsy. He went to the Springs about two weeks ago, but his sojourn did not benefit him, and he gradually grew worse until death relieved him.

The deceased was born in Paducah March 5th, 1856, and here grew to manhood, studied for the bar and was admitted to practice. He rose rapidly in his profession, and was soon one of the most popular members of the bar. He was a member of the firm of Quigley and Quigley, railroad attorneys, and had been associated with his father in the Illinois Central business since the board absorbed the old C. O. and S. W. Colonel Quigley had had the railroad business for the past twenty-five years before he resigned.

The deceased was elected to serve in the legislature of 1894, and about the same year was appointed by Governor John Young Brown to serve out the unexpired term of Judge Caswell Bennett of the court of appeals. He was a judge of this court for about two and one-half years, and when he returned to Paducah resumed the practice of law.

His health began to fail a year or two ago, and just previous to his death he was very feeble, and could not get around without assistance. His home was in Arcadia, but for some time past he had been living at his sister's, Mrs. Geo. Langstaff, Jr., on Court street.

He was unmarried, and leaves besides his parents three brothers, Messrs. John and Clair Quigley of the city and Mr. Bruce Quigley of Indian Territory, and one sister, Mrs. George Langstaff, Jr., of the city.

Mr. Quigley was one of those genial, whole-souled men whom everybody liked. He was popular with all, and leaves a host of friends who will sincerely mourn his death. He was a member of Plain City lodge, Masons, and of Paducah lodge, B. P. O. E.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock, at Grace Episcopal church; burial at Oak Grove cemetery.

The remains of the late Mrs. Charles Lehrer were brought up from Cairo last evening and taken to the home of Mr. Ed Lehrer, on Madison street near Fifth. The funeral took place this morning at 9 o'clock from the Catholic church, burial at Oak Grove.

The remains of the late William Shanks, the ship carpenter, are still at Effinger's, but will be buried Sunday afternoon at Oak Grove by the ship carpenters' union. His relatives in West Virginia have not been heard from.

The remains of Mr. E. F. Roberts, who died suddenly at Bandana, Ballard county, reached the city this morning and were buried at Oak Grove. He was father of Mr. W. H. Roberts, of the local dry goods firm, Boldry and Roberts.

The remains of Miss Lucy Henley, who died yesterday in Little's addition were buried at Oak Grove today at 11 o'clock.

Mayor Yeiser Not Satisfied About the Election in November Next.

Has Asked for a Legal Opinion—Committee Called Together to Act August 20.

MAYOR'S INDIVIDUAL OPINION

Mayor D. A. Yeiser stated this morning in regard to the publication in yesterday's Sun relative to the election of aldermen in November, that he does not know whether an election is necessary or not, but will in a few days have the written opinion of an eminent lawyer from another city, as he has sent for it and expects it in a short time.

When asked what he thought about it, he said his individual opinion, from what he knew, is that no election is necessary, and that the aldermen will hold on until November 1903. There is nothing, however, to justify such an opinion, and for the aldermen to hold on longer than the approaching November would clearly be against the charter provisions.

Mayor Yeiser also said that he had the opinion of some of the best attorneys that he will not have to give up his office next November, but will hold on four years, despite the fact that this would make the election of another mayor in 1905, when the charter provides that such elections shall be held only every four years after 1895, which would make the election of a mayor in Paducah necessary next year, and again in 1907. It seems that the mayor's idea is that the charter is unconstitutional, and cannot prescribe the time when elections shall be held.

A great deal of interest has been aroused since yesterday's publication in The Sun relative to the race for aldermen, and it is probable that some good men will be put out. The crowd now in office is of course determined to hang on if possible, but they will have the Republicans as well as certain factions in the Democratic party, to contend with, and it is practically settled that the election will be held in November, whether they want it or not.

Chairman R. G. Caldwell, of the Democratic city committee, has called the committee together to meet August 20 to decide about putting out a ticket, and there may be a lively time in the committee between the friends of the present administration and the other fellows.

STILL MISSING.

A FORTUNE TELLER FAILS TO SIGHT THE SEARCHERS.

Dock Walker, who created a sensation in the vicinity of Fulton by disappearing a week ago, is still missing, and it seems that his principal object was to escape creditors.

An amusing sight was witnessed in Fulton yesterday. A caravan of searchers, headed by Wm. H. Parish, a man who had gone on his note for $500, and accompanied by Luigi Balz, a Hungarian fortune teller, came into Fulton from Mt. Pelia, Tenn. The fortune teller said he could pilot them to the body of Walker, but he didn't do it, and it was a very much disgusted crowd that was with him.

SWITCHBOARD BURNED OUT.

The switch board at the Western Union telegraph office was burned out last night about 9 o'clock by a live wire somewhere on the line. The damage will amount to about $25.

A WORM KILLER.

J. A. J. Montgomery, Paxico, Wayne county, Mo., writes: "I have little twin girls who have been bothered with worms all their lives. I tried everything to relieve them which failed until I used White's Cream Vermifuge; the first two doses brought four worms from one of them, the next two doses, twelve, one of them measuring twelve inches; the other child was relieved of four worms. It is a most excellent medicine." White's Cream Vermifuge is good for children. It not only destroys worms, it helps the child to perfect growth, wards off sickness. 25c at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

THE KENTUCKY ELKS

Preparations Complete for the Big Trip West.

Most of the Crowd Will Go from Louisville—Paducah's Delegation Joins at St. Louis.

AN ELEGANT TIME PROMISED

The Elks will hold their national reunion at Salt Lake City, Utah, this year, from August 12 to 14, and Kentucky is going to send a large and merry crowd to do honor to our state. Only a few will go from Paducah, but from other cities there will be large and enthusiastic delegations. They leave today.

The Louisville crowd has a special train, and most of the representatives of Kentucky will go to Louisville and leave on it, but the Paducah crowd will go to St. Louis and there catch the Kentucky flyer.

For months the members of the "Salt Lake City club," composed of members of "No. 8," the familiar name for the good fellows of Louisville lodge, have been working up interest in a pilgrimage to the Mormon capital.

The equipment of the special train will consist of one sixty-foot baggage car, a reception coach, five sixteen-section standard tourist sleepers and a standard twelve-section drawing room observation car. From one end to the other the train will be wide vestibuled. The baggage car will be open at both ends. In one end will be the commissary; in the other a large baggage apartment, where the ladies may change dresses at certain hours in the day, and where the men may don different suits. The sides of the train will bear long white streamers with the following lettering in purple:

KENTUCKY ELKS.

The train leaves Louisville today at 1:30 p. m. and reaches St. Louis at 10 p. m.

Denver will be reached at 7 o'clock a. m. Saturday, and there sixteen hours will be spent. There will be a reception in the evening in honor of the Kentucky Elks by members of Denver Lodge. Leaving the Colorado metropolis at 11 o'clock p. m., Colorado Springs will be reached at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning. Twenty-four hours will be devoted to this city, a reception being given Sunday night in honor of the visitors by the Colorado Springs members of the order.

The Sunday stay at Colorado Springs will give the party the opportunity to see Manitou and the Garden of the Gods, as well as Pike's Peak. The journey will be resumed Monday morning at 2 o'clock, breakfast being taken at Salida and lunch at Minturn. This part of the trip will be through the best Rocky Mountain scenery.

The train is scheduled to get to Glenwood Springs at 2:20 o'clock p. m. There nearly six hours will be spent, with a reception. Grand Junction will be reached at 10:50 o'clock p. m., Monday. There the train will be switched from the Denver and Rio Grande to the Rio Grande Western. The whistle will blow for Salt Lake City on Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock.

The Kentucky Elks will have headquarters at the Hotel Knutsford, and will do the honors in royal style.

The return trip will be over the Rio Grande Western and Denver and Rio Grande to Denver, the Union Pacific to Omaha, the Illinois Central to Chicago and the Monon route to Louisville. This will give the party a different picture of the west.

Those from Paducah who will go are: Dr. C. E. Whitesides and wife, Misses Flora and Adele Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Petter, and Dr. J. L. Dismukes, Jr., of Mayfield.

MISSIONARY SERVICES

GOOD WORK BEING DONE BY REV. JOHNSTON AND THE QUARTET.

Rev. H. B. Johnston, presiding elder, is making a canvass of his district with the missionary quartet, which consists of Rev. J. C. Wilson, Rev. H. C. Johnson of Memphis, Rev. J. J. Thomas of Huntington, and Rev. C. A. Waterfield of Hickman. Three services have been arranged for the city next Sunday, as follows: At Trimble street church at 11 a. m., Little's Chapel at 3 p. m. and Third street at 8 p. m. These young men are splendid musicians, and much of each service will be in song.

Missionary addresses will be made by two or more of the brethren at each service. The pastors of the above churches desire that large audiences shall hear them.

COUNTY ROAD WORK.

Contractor Will Yancey expects to have all the 300 miles of county dirt road repaired by the last of next month. He has a large force of men at work and is making good progress. Supervisor Johnson has not decided when the necessary changes will be made at Fortson's fill, the viaducts under which will have to be enlarged to afford passage for the water during the wet season.

and nervousness which follows, restore the appetite and remove gloomy feelings. Elegantly sugar coated. Take No Substitute.

ATTACHED GOODS.

An attachment suit was yesterday afternoon filed by the St. Louis Dressed Beef and Provision company against Sol T. Hamm to secure possession of a quantity of goods sold the defendant. It is alleged in the petition that the defendant intended to defraud when he bought the goods. A writ of delivery was taken out, and much of the goods identified. Sheriff Potter will ship them back to the house this evening unless Hamm comes in and gives bond for their retention, which he will probably not do, as he is said to be in Arkansas, and has not been seen since his store on Second street was closed on attachment last week.

Commodore James E. Montgomery, the Confederate naval officer who nearly captured General Grant during the Civil War, died in Chicago Monday, at the home of his son, Dr. James Montgomery. He was born in Carrollton, Ky., in 1817. He lost his eyesight twelve years ago, since which time he had lived in Chicago. In ante-bellum days there were few better known or more popular boatmen than Jim and Sam Montgomery. They lived in New Albany for many years.

Every day river men speak of the conditions that prevailed one year ago on the local streams as compared with those of today. Then all the boats were laid up and navigation was suspended for weeks. Now the boats are in the midst of one of the busiest seasons they have ever known, and have good prospects of running for a considerable time yet. This big supply of water means much to the river interests, and will make a big showing in the business of many firms in the city which are directly or indirectly connected with the boats.

The rivalry that has existed between the two Pittsburg-Morgantown packet lines since the Anchor line started business a couple of months ago has resulted in charges being preferred before the United States Steamboat Inspectors by Captain R. R. Abrams of the steamer I. C. Woodward, of the old line, against Captain Frank Ganoce and Pilots Sam Hendrickson and Irwin Boyd of the Elizabeth, of the new line. Captain Abrams charges the men with violating the marine code, alleging that on last Sunday his boat was pushed ashore in the ninth pool of the Monongahela river by the Elizabeth. The latter's officers say the Woodward's pilot refused to answer the proper signals. The incident will be investigated. No damage resulted to the Woodward.

RETURNED HOME.

YOUNG MAN MISSES WEST POINT CONNECTION.

Prince Hart of Murray, who secured the appointment to West Point from Congressman Wheeler, and who left two weeks ago to enter upon his duties at the school, returned home rather unexpectedly Sunday. He passed both class and physical examinations required, but was excluded from entering owing to the fact that his certificate failed to reach the proper authorities in time.

TRANSCRIPT FORWARDED.

The transcript in the case of William Floyd against the street car company has been forwarded to the court of appeals, which will make the third time it has been reviewed by that court. The first time company won and the next time the plaintiff got $1,000, and the last time the railroad won. Floyd is deaf and was struck by a street car on North Twelfth street.

HARRY WARD HURT

Popular Minstrel in a Wreck in Missouri Yesterday.

Several of Ward's Troupe Were Injured in the Smashup.

The many friends here of Mr. Harry Ward, the well known minstrel, who has often appeared here during the past five or six years, and been guest of honor of the Elks at several social sessions, was badly hurt in a wreck at Hannibal, Mo., day before yesterday.

His troupe, numbering 25, showed at Hannibal and left on an early morning train of the St. Louis, Keokuk and Northwestern for Louisiana, Mo., to fill an engagement that evening. In passing through the yards at Hannibal a switch engine collided with the train, turning over the car of the troupe and pulling it about 100 yards before it was brought to a standstill.

Manager Ward was badly bruised about the back and hip, and the other injured were:

George Wade, of Lexington, Mo., treasurer of the company, right leg almost cut off, left foot crushed and contusions about the body.

William Stettler of Mertztown, Pa., cornet player, eyes seriously cut by flying glass.

Charles Fletcher, cook in the car, lower limbs bruised.

NO INQUEST.

DEATH OF ED SETTLE'S WIFE A CLEAR CASE OF SUICIDE.

The remains of the wife of Ed Settle, colored, who Tuesday night took a lot of ground glass mixed with quick silver from the back of a mirror and 5 cents worth of morphine with a little opium thrown in, were yesterday afternoon buried at Oak Grove.

All the above things she mixed in the dose which she swallowed and shortly afterwards had gone beyond all human aid and died in a stupor. She was dying when Drs. Hoyer and Robertson were called.

Although the case was a clear suicide the coroner was not notified until late yesterday afternoon and the undertaker had already prepared the remains for burial when he arrived. It is probable that no inquest will be held, as Coroner Peal thinks that it is unnecessary. The statement that the police were looking for Ed Settle is untrue.

METROPOLIS ICE

IT IS THE POTTERY PROMOTERS WHO WANT TO ESTABLISH A FACTORY.

Mention was made yesterday of the report current in Metropolis that owners of the Paducah Ice Company contemplated the establishment of a factory there to furnish ice to the people of Southern Illinois and Metropolis. Such a project, it is learned today, has been contemplated for the past three years by the Paducah Ice Company, but there is no intention of doing it at present, and the gentlemen who are contemplating the erection of the plant at Metropolis are the promoters of the pottery who are preparing to build there. As the gentlemen are men of means, it is probable that they are very much in earnest.

SUIT OVER HORSE TRADE.

J. F. Moss has filed a suit against Quitman Covington in the quarterly court asking for $150 damages. He claims he swapped horses with the defendant with the understanding that the horse he swapped for was gentle and would work anywhere. He states that these allegations have proven false and asks for damages.

A FRIEND'S ADVICE.

WILL OFTEN HELP YOU GREATLY—READ WHAT A PADUCAH CITIZEN SAYS.

You may hesitate to listen to the advice of strangers, but the testimony of friends or residents of Paducah is worth your most careful attention. It is an easy matter to investigate such proof as this. Then the evidence must be conclusive. Read the following:

Mrs. E. B. Barnard of 1608 Broadway says: "For six years there was scarcely a day when my health was not poor. If I had not lameness in my back I had rheumatism, both of which from their very persistency sapped my energy and made me and miserable. My son, noticing that Doan's Kidney Pills were helping other people in Paducah, got a box at Du Bois and Co.'s drug store, and I took a course of the treatment. Now I don't want it understood that it has cured my long standing rheumatism, but if ever a woman is truly thankful for the immunity from pain which the use of Doan's Kidney Pills has caused, I am that woman."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Remember the name, Doan's—and take no other.

CROP REPORT

THE RAINS HAVE DONE MUCH GOOD IN KENTUCKY.

The crop bulletin issued yesterday for the week ending August 4 said that the crops throughout the state have been greatly aided by local rains and hot weather. Corn has improved in many localities where the drouth is felt. This is particularly the case in the southern and southwestern counties. However, the drouth has done considerable damage to the early corn on the uplands. In the north central and most of the eastern counties the corn continues to do well.

The average condition of the tobacco crop is not good. In the western counties it had a poor start on account of the drouth, and has been kept back in many localities for the same reason. It is doing fairly well in the northeastern counties but the Bluegrass region, though, is hardly up to the average.

Pastures and meadows are in need of rain, though gardens are doing well. The fruit prospects continue unfavorable. Farm work is well up and plowing for wheat has progressed where there is sufficient rain.

PHYSICIAN AND DRUGGISTS.

Ford and Sturgeon, a prominent drug firm at Rocky Hill Station, Ky., write: "We were requested by Dr. G. B. Snigley to send for Herbine for the benefit of our customers. We ordered three dozen in December, and we are glad to say Herbine has given such great satisfaction that we have duplicated this order three times, and today we gave your salesman another order. We beg to say Dr. G. B. Snigley takes pleasure in recommending Herbine." 50c bottle at DuBois, Kolb and Co.

DAILY THOUGHT.

Never make a promise unless you mean to keep it.—Henry M. Stanley.

If you see it in The Sun it's so, and it doesn't take an extra edition to give it to the public.

The house of lords meets tonight, and an anxious world is patiently waiting to learn what it will do this time.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, the liberated missionary, is still lecturing to thousands, telling about having no soap or hairpins while in captivity. The last time she told her soap story there were 9,000 present.

The call of the Republican district committee published in yesterday's paper should have been for Tuesday, August 12, instead of Thursday, August 12. It is more than probable that there will be plenty of candidates on hand to make the race for congress and appellate judge.

The board of aldermen will have to step down and out in November. A fight may be waged to hold on, but the law is on the other side, and the members will have to yield. It is time to begin thinking of progressive men for the places. This patriotic board of aldermen defeated the cow ordinance after it had been passed by the more plebeian council.

A good Republican, Hon. Vincent Boring, has defeated another good Republican, Hon. D. G. Cohen, one of the most intelligent and gallant Republicans in Kentucky, for congress in the Eleventh district. They are both good men, and the state would have been proud whichever way the primary went. While it was not an election it was equivalent to one for no Democrat stands any show in that part of the state.

The Sun is not given to boasting, but it is usually there with the goods when it comes to giving the people the news. It doesn't have to get out extras. It gets it all in the regular edition. If you don't believe the Sun is popular walk down Broadway and you'll see that every merchant takes it. Walk out Broadway and you'll see it on nearly every porch, and go in any direction, and you'll see it wherever you go.

Following the publication in The Sun of the necessity of electing a board of aldermen this fall, Chairman R. G. Caldwell, of the city Democratic committee, has called the committee to meet Wednesday, August 20 to take the proper steps to put out a Democratic ticket. The Republicans will be heard from in due time, and what the people are going to do to the $1.85 gang in November will be a caution.

The hack muddle seems to have been settled. The railroad company thought it was best for its patrons to lease a portion of the reservation near the passenger depot platform to a transfer company, and did so. That is an affair that the city council has nothing to do with. The property occupied by the hacks and leased by the railroad company, was the property of the railroad and not the city, and to say that a railroad company has no right to lease its own property is sheer nonsense.

The Sun is always up to date. Yesterday afternoon it gave the public the first news of the terrible disaster at Dawson, two hours before one of its so-called metropolitan contemporaries attempted to keep the pace by issuing an extra with the stale news. The Sun was on the street with the first news of the catastrophe at 4 o'clock, its regular hour for appearing. Details were meagre, but the news quickly spread and the extra copies sent out were quickly disposed of, and the telephone was kept busy for several hours replying to the questions asked. The Sun can always be depended on for news that is reliable and new. We get out no extras, but give the public the news in the regular editions and save the expense of extras except in very unusual cases.

Paducah's progress is assured, but in spite of, not because of, the class of men who are sometimes in office. If we had progressive men in charge of affairs, men who consider the interests of the public as a whole, and not the interests of a part of the public, our growth would double and treble. Take the case of the town cow, for example. There may be, and evidently are, hundreds of the animals in the city, but no sensible man believes a majority of the taxpayers own cows. Yet for the benefit of a few cow owners, the cows are allowed to run at large. It is evident to any person who knows anything of sanitation that sewerage promotes it, yet no effort has ever been made to compel people to connect with the sewerage, the only apparent reason being that a few can ill afford it.

MYSTERIOUS DEATH

Reported That Norman Bowman Died of Poisoning.

Several Accounts of His Sudden Demise—Funeral Today.

Nothing definite has been received relative to the death of Norman Bowman, at Lovelaceville, Ky. He was found dead in bed yesterday morning, it is supposed from poisoning. One report is that he drank lemon extract all day, and died from the effects of it and alcohol that night, and another is that he took poison with suicidal intent. It is said he had been despondent ever since the shooting of Henry Gray last May by Eli Hutchinson, who is now in jail for murder. The killing was done with Bowman's pistol, which Hutchinson borrowed.

The deceased was one of the best known young men of that section, and was a prosperous merchant. He was about 30 years old. The funeral took place today.

OUR RURAL DELIVERY

It is Uncertain When McCracken's Will Be Started.

It Is Believed that the Three Routes Will Be Established Here Before December.

NO DATE HAS YET BEEN SET

Congressman Wheeler and Postmaster Fisher, who have become impatient, have written to Washington to ascertain when the rural free delivery is to be established in the county. It seems from press dispatches sent out from Washington yesterday that it is uncertain.

For nearly a year free rural delivery has been promised McCracken county, and two or three routes have been authorized, but nothing has ever been done to start it.

Yesterday's dispatches say:

Jefferson county rural free delivery service will be inaugurated August 15. On September 1 two routes will be established at Mt. Sterling, five at Paris, one at Pleasantville, one at Turner's Station and two at Hopkinsville. On October 1 four will be started at Henderson, three at Morganfield and one each at Corydon, Gravel Switch and Cave City. The above are the only routes having the date of inauguration fixed. The department announces that after October 1, and perhaps before December 31, he following routes will be established, the petitions having received the approval of the department.

Lebanon and Maysville, four each; Bowling Green, Springfield and Paducah, three each; Elizabethtown, Ewing and Shepherdsburg, two each. The following one each: Trenton, Stithton, Mayslick, Moreland, Oakland, Olmstead, Owensboro, Riley, Rineyville, Russellville, Sadieville, Senora, Bardstown, Bedford, Bagdad, Clinton, Franklin, Fulton, Glasgow, Guthrie and Horse Cave. It is, therefore, expected that about one hundred routes will be in operation in the state by the close of the year or early in 1903.

IS SANE.

But His Actions Have Been Quite Peculiar

William Braswell Brought to the City Today By Constable Miller.

Constable Anderson Miller arrived this afternoon with a man giving the name of William Braswell, who claims Clinton, Ky., as his home. He has been roaming about in the lower part of the county for several days, badly frightening the women and children, and no one could account for his actions. The constable caught him this morning.

Braswell seems to be crazy but says he is not. He wore when brought into the sheriff's office this afternoon four pair of socks, four pair of pants, and three shirts, and then thought it must be a hot day outside.

He worked on the railroad extension awhile, but alleges they discharged him and "he got mad and quit." He will be held pending further investigation.

SICKENING DISASTER

any one to her ward, and will keep the news of the deaths and other serious injuries from her until she has improved and is strong enough to hear the news without fear of a relapse. Dr. J. Q. Taylor, assisted by Drs. Cooley and Earl, removed the foot last night, soon after the young lady was taken to the hospital.

Mr. Stevenson arrived in the city last night immediately after the news of the accident reached his home, and this morning the remains of his wife were taken to Lowes Cross Roads, where the funeral will be held this afternoon. Lowes is where her parents also live.

After the accident the greatest excitement prevailed. It was not long until a large crowd had collected about the place. The screams of the young lady with her foot mangled could be heard for blocks, and the scene was one to unnerve the bravest.

The body of Mrs. Stephenson was horribly mangled, there being only the pieces. That of Miss Smith was also badly mangled when knocked from the trestle.

All possible aid was rendered the injured. Dr. Hessig, of the city, and the nurses at the Illinois Central hospital, who were attending the picnic, as well as the physicians at Dawson, rendered every possible aid.

The injured were brought in at 6 p. m., and the bodies of the dead on the excursion train at 9 o'clock.

That of Miss Smith was carried to the home of Mrs. Jerry Arnold, her sister, 1228 Bernheim avenue, and that of Mrs. Stephenson to the home of her brother-in-law, Mr. Flint, on Broadway, near Twelfth. Miss Smith was 37 years old and a native of Ballard county, coming here nine years ago. She leaves a mother and two sisters, Mrs. William Sudeth, wife of the former police officer, and Mrs. John Clark, wife of the city lamp trimmer.

Mrs. Stephenson was 40 years old, the wife of a stock dealer, and came here about three days ago on a visit. She leaves a husband and three children. Miss Nickels is not related to any of the others, but was visiting at Mrs. Arnold's.

A great deal of praise is due Dr. Hessig, of the city, the nurses from the I. C. hospital and the Dawson physicians for their services. Dr. Hessig slightly sprained his ankle, but it is better today.

The funeral of Mrs. Stephenson took place this afternoon at Lowes Cross Roads, and the burial of Miss Smith in the country also.

MURDER AT DAWSON

Walter Sampson Shot in the Hotel There Last Night.

His Assailant Made Good His Escape But Will Be Caught.

There was a murder at Dawson last night about 11 o'clock. Walter Sampson, colored, second cook at the New Century Hotel there, was shot and killed by a negro named Richmond Shelby, of Princeton Ky.

The shooting took place in the hotel basement, it is supposed over a game of craps.

Sampson, whose home is in Dallas, Texas, lived about an hour after being shot.

The murderer made his escape, but officers are hot in pursuit, and it is believed will capture him.

She Claims He Deserted Her and Now Asks for a Divorce.

Attorney W. V. Eaton has filed a suit in circuit court for Minnie Abner against her husband, S. E. Abner, one of the picture men who travel about the country selling pictures.

The plaintiff formerly lived in Livingston county, and is a mere girl. The smooth talking picture man soon gained the girl's consent to a marriage she declares, and after incurring a great many expenses at the place, all of which he did not meet, he finally skipped out, leaving the girl behind with the bills unpaid. She gives the above fraudulent means of securing her marriage along with non-support and cruel and inhuman treatment, her grounds for the action, and asks for the restoration of her maiden name, Minnie Barrett, and an absolute divorce. She now resides in the city.

NEW MOTORMEN.

REPORTS OF TROUBLE ARE DENIED BY ALL CONCERNED.

It is reported that the street car company is putting on new motormen because of an impending strike of the older motormen. The company is breaking in a lot of new men for extra service, but the reports of a strike are denied by all concerned, including the motormen, who say there is not the least danger of trouble of any kind.

COLORED TEACH.

ERS' INSTITUTE

The colored teachers' institute continues to increase both in attendance and interest. The teachers are co-operating with the conductor, Prof. G. F. Porter, and Mrs. M. V. Pearson, who is presiding, to make this session one of the most valuable ever held in the county. The institute is much pleased to have in attendance visiting teachers, Miss L. Gibson, one of Louisville's successful and wide-awake teachers, and Miss Jenkins of Cairo, both of whom are taking active part of the work.

The city teachers and a number of citizens are adding much to the life and interest of the institute.

MENTIONED AS A CANDIDATE.

Attorney Ed Paryear, one of the best known and most popular men in Paducah, is mentioned as a candidate for commonwealth's attorney in this district for the Democratic nomination, and if he runs will doubtless make it lively for other aspirants for the nomination.

FOOD TREATMENT.

OLD STOMACHS MADE OVER

Improper medicine knocks out as many stomachs as bad food, but proper food will nearly always restore the health that nature intended.

"I suffered with chronic constipation for a long time and two years ago became an invalid, being unable to retain anything on my stomach," says Mrs. F. M. Buss, of Millersburg, Ky.

Physicians pronounced it catarrh of the stomach and bowels. In fact, the entire alimentary canal was involved, caused they said, by continued use of purgatives. For several weeks I could not retain more than a teaspoonful of any kind of fluid at any time and at this stage of my illness a friend suggested that I try Grape Nuts. I commenced by taking only a teaspoonful at a time of the water poured, while boiling, over two teaspoonfuls of the Grape Nuts. In five days, I was able to digest a teaspoonful of the Grape Nuts themselves, and in less than a month could digest an ordinary meal. I can eat anything now, after having used Grape Nuts for nearly two years, and am entirely cured of constipation. It is a wholesome, pure and inexpensive food."

ABOUT FIFTY APPLICANTS EXAMINED THUS FAR.

The barber examiners are doing good work here, and up until noon today had examined 48 applicants and granted that many certificates.

All that is required of the barbers is that they make an affidavit that they have served three years at the trade, and those who have not are granted apprentice certificates. Those who have not been here the requisite length of time are given an examination at the expense of $5, with an extra dollar for the certificate. Those who have been here prior to July 1 have to stand the examination, even if they can prove that they have served three years at the trade. No trouble has been experienced here so far, and the examiners think they will have examined all the sixty barbers here by Friday afternoon, when they close, without any trouble.

LOST ARM, BUT SAVED HIS LIFE

Terrible Experience of Man Who Fell as He Left a Train.

Oscar Wensole, who was recently seriously injured by a Burlington train, is rapidly improving at St. Francis' hospital. The story of the accident, as told by the injured young man, is that he attempted to jump, intending to alight upon his left foot. He slipped, and was forced to extend his right foot, which when it struck the ground, threw him directly toward the train.

In attempting to catch at something his arm fell across the rail, and his position was such that it was impossible for him to move without meeting instant death. Thus, with the full realization of what was transpiring, he was forced to lie perfectly still and endure having eight sets of wheels pass over and grind off his arm. Besides the first pinching sensation, there was no great pain. If he had attempted to move out of the way he would have been crushed upon the head by the overhanging steps of the coaches as they rushed over him, or, possibly, thrown under the train.

It was all done so quickly that there was but a fraction of a second to decide between the loss of an arm and the retention of life and an attempt to save the arm and probable death. He chose the former. In a dim way he saw a receding light and faintly realized what it all meant; that the train was gone and that he no longer possessed a right arm. He struggled upon the elbow of his remaining arm and managed to reach his home.—La Crosse Chronicle.

THE WAY OF THE MODERN FATH

strictly Business, Even on Occasion of His Daughter's Marriage.

"Did you call on her father this morning?"

"Yes, I did, and my head is whirling yet."

"Didn't use violence, did he?"

"Violence! I guess not. I got into his office all right. I had written asking for an appointment, and he at once pulled his watch on me and said: 'I can give you just seven minutes. Talk fast.' Well, say, that rattled me so that I could only stammer. 'You want to marry my daughter, don't you?' he abruptly asked. I said I did. 'Anything else?' he roared. 'That's all,' I hastily said. He made a hurried memorandum. 'Did you put your request in writing?' I told him I had not done so. 'How irregular,' he snarled, and made another memorandum. 'When?' he yelled. 'When Miss Amy is ready,' I replied. 'She says June,' he snorted, and made another memorandum. 'Where do you want to go on your wedding journey?' he cried. 'Wherever Amy wants to go,' I murmured. 'She's going abroad,' he said, and worked away at another memorandum. 'One first-class suite on steamship Adriatic June 25. I'll order it to-day. Anything else?' he growled. 'No, thank you, sir,' I said. Then he put out a clammy hand. 'Glad to know you,' he said. 'Come in again some time when I'm not so busy. That's all. See you in June, I suppose. Good-day.' And I found myself gasping outside the door."

TOO READY WITH ITS ANSWER

Minister's Parrot Meant Well, but the Result Was Dire.

The Rev. Dr. McConnell, formerly of Philadelphia, and now of Brooklyn, has had a sad experience with feathered pets. One of his wealthy parishioners is an old lady. She recently bought a parrot for company. But to her horror almost the first phrase it uttered was: "I wish the old woman was dead."

When Dr. McConnell called she told him about her new purchase.

"Why, Doctor," said she, "it keeps saying all day long: 'I wish the old woman was dead.' What shall I do?"

"I have it," replied the doctor. I have a parrot myself, and he only knows religious phrases. Let me send him around and keep him with yours awhile. Yours will learn his phrases and then all will go on beautifully."

The idea struck the spinster favorably and Dr. McConnell's parrot was sent round. That very day the two were put together and the old lady settled down in her rocker with a placid face. Suddenly her parrot cried out:

"I wish the old woman was dead."

In true Episcopalian form Dr. McConnell's bird answered:

"We beseech thee to hear us, good Lord!"

"Tis said the Doctor doesn't call as often as he did. His parrot is back home. The other is dead."

Try to Evade Duties.

It has been the habit of French stationmasters, especially in Paris, to discard their official uniform, with the result that when no other employees are present the general public is unable to obtain information. The minister of public works, in the course of a circular letter, has reminded stationmasters that they are not exempt from the obligation of wearing distinctive uniform.

CAN HEAR PRESIDENT'S ANSWER

Secrecy Not Encouraged by the Nation's Chief Executive.

When he speaks in a low, inaudible tone, you may be pretty sure that they are concerned with some matter of state; when, on the other hand, he has to meet requests that are matters not of state, but of politics, or worse, Mr. Roosevelt often speaks right out so that everybody hears. Petitioners whisper in vain; the answer is clear and distinct, and sometimes these answers are amusing to hear, seriously significant to reflect about afterwards.

They tell how one of the most eminent dignitaries of the government was among the callers one day. The president gave him precedence, expecting that his business was important, and the visitor did lean over and whisper most seriously. To the amazement and amusement of the knowing on-lookers, the president's reply aloud was:

"Mr. —, in the army, promotions go by seniority and merit alone."

The dignitary whispered even more softly than before; but again the reply was:

"Mr. —, promotions in the army go by seniority and merit. It is a good practice, and I shall not interfere with it."

Mr. — retreated, and the people who had heard told one another that he had in the army a son, who was very dear to him.—McClure's Magazine.

THE COURIER OF THE CZAR

By Jules Verne

Michael Strogoff would have given his life to have locked his mother in his arms, but if he yielded it was all over with him, with her, with his mission, with his oath! Completely master of himself, he closed his eyes in order not to see the inexpressible anguish which agitated the revered countenance of his mother. He drew back his hands in order not to touch those trembling hands which sought him.

"I do not know, in truth, what it is you say, my good woman," he replied, stepping back.

"Michael!" again cried his aged mother.

"My name is not Michael. I never was your son! I am Nicholas Korpanoff, a merchant of Irkutsk."

And suddenly he left the public room, while for the last time the words echoed:

"My son, my son!"

Michael Strogoff, by a desperate effort, had gone. He did not see his old mother, who had fallen back almost inanimate upon a bench. But when the postmaster hastened to assist her the aged woman raised herself. Suddenly a thought occurred to her. She denied by her son! It was not possible. As for being herself deceived and taking mother for him—equally impossible. It was certainly her son whom she had just seen, and if he had not recognized her it was because he would not, it was because he ought not, it was because he had some cogent reason for acting thus! And then, her mother feelings arising within her, she had but one thought—"Can I unwittingly have ruined him?"

"I am mad," she said to her interrogators. "My eyes have deceived me! This young man is not my child. He had not his voice. Let us think no more of it. If we do, I shall end by finding him everywhere."

Less than ten minutes afterward a Tartar officer appeared in the posting house.

"Marfa Strogoff?" he asked.

"It is I," replied the old woman in a tone so calm and with a face so tranquil that those who had witnessed the meeting with her son would not have known her.

"Come," said the officer. Marfa Strogoff, with firm step, followed the Tartar officer and left the posting house.

Some moments afterward Marfa Strogoff found herself in the chief square and in the presence of Ivan Ogareff, to whom all the details of this scene had been immediately reported.

Ivan Ogareff, suspecting the truth, interrogated the old Siberian woman.

"Thy name?" he asked in a rough voice.

"Marfa Strogoff."

"Thou hast a son?"

"Yes."

"He is a courier of the czar?"

"Yes."

"Where is he?"

"At Moscow."

"Thou hast heard no news of him?"

"No news."

"Since how long?"

"Since two months."

"Who, then, was that young man whom thou didst call thy son a few moments ago at the posting house?"

"A young Siberian whom I took for him," replied Marfa Strogoff.

"Thou hast heard no news of him?"

"No news."

"Since how long?"

ness and his success? Would not the czar of Russia scowl with rage when he learned that his courier was in the hands of his foes?

Ivan Ogareff had therefore no doubt that the pretended Nicholas Korpanoff was Michael Strogoff, courier of the czar, seeking concealment under a false name and charged with some mission which it would have been important for him to know. He therefore at once gave orders for his pursuit. Then he said:

"Let this woman be conducted to Tomsk," returning toward Marfa Strogoff.

And while the soldiers brutally dragged her along he added between his teeth:

"When the moment arrives, I shall know how to make her speak, this old sorceress!"

CHAPTER IX.

It was fortunate that Michael Strogoff had left the posting house so promptly. The orders of Ivan Ogareff had been immediately transmitted to all the approaches of the city and a full description of Michael sent to all the various commandants, in order to prevent his departure from Omak. But he had already passed through one of the breaches in the fortifications. His horse was galloping over the steppe, and not having been immediately pursued, the chances of escape were in his favor.

It was on the 29th of July, at 8 o'clock in the evening, that Michael Strogoff had left Omak. This town is situated about half way between Moscow and Irkutsk, where it was necessary that he should arrive within ten days if he wished to get ahead of the Tartar columns. It was evident that the unlucky chance which had brought him into the presence of his mother had betrayed his incognito. Ivan Ogareff was no longer ignorant of the fact that a courier of the czar had just passed Omak, taking the direction of Irkutsk. The dispatches which this courier bore must have been of immense importance. Michael Strogoff knew, therefore, that every effort would be made to capture him.

But what he did not know and could not know was that Marfa Strogoff was in the hands of Ivan Ogareff and that she was about to atone, perhaps with her life, for that natural exhibition of her feelings which she had been unable to restrain when she suddenly found herself in the presence of her son. And it was fortunate that he was ignorant of it. Could he have withstood this fresh trial?

Michael Strogoff urged on his horse, imbuing him with all his own feverish impatience, requiring of him one thing only—namely, to bear him rapidly to the next posting house, where he could be exchanged for a quicker conveyance.

At midnight he had cleared seventy versts and halted at the station of Koulkovo. But there, as he feared, he found neither horses nor carriages. Several Tartar detachments had passed along the highway of the steppe. Everything had been stolen or requisitioned both in the villages and in the posting houses. It was with difficulty that Michael Strogoff was even able to obtain some refreshment for his horse and himself.

It was of great importance therefore to spare his horse, for he could not tell when or how he might be able to replace it. Desiring, however, to put the greatest possible distance between himself and the horsemen whom Ivan Ogareff had no doubt dispatched in pursuit, he resolved to push on. After one hour's rest he resumed his course across the steppe.

And on July 30, at 4 p. m., Michael Strogoff, heedless of fatigue, arrived at Elamsk.

There he was forced to give a night's rest to his horse. The courageous beast could not have continued that journey any longer.

At Elamsk there was no means of transportation for the same reasons as in the burghs already passed by—carriages and horses were gone.

Elamsk, a small town the Tartars had not visited yet, was almost completely depopulated, for it was very easy to invade it from the south and almost impossible to succor it from the north. So relay of post, police station, government building, all were abandoned by governmental order, and on one side the functionaries, on the other the inhabitants, had gone to Kamak, in the center of the Baraba.

Michael Strogoff was obliged to pass the night at Elamsk to permit his horse to rest at least twelve hours. He remembered the instructions given him at Moscow to cross Siberia unknown, reach Irkutsk at all hazards, but also to not sacrifice success to the swiftness of his passage. Consequently he was forced to spare the only means of travel left him.

On the morrow Michael Strogoff left Elamsk, and five days later, on the 5th of August, twenty-one days since starting, he found himself 1,500 versts yet distant from Irkutsk.

Michael Strogoff was rapidly nearing Kalyvan when distant detonations reached his ears.

He stopped and distinctly heard the dull, heavy reports which shook the air, mingled with sharper and shriller sounds, the cause of which he well knew.

He was only half a mile from Kalyvan when a long jet of flame flashed betwixt the houses of the city, and the spire of a church crumbled down in the middle of a torrent of embers and fire.

At that moment the detonations were very violent. Soon the flames stretched forth on the left of the city. The fire had devoured a whole quarter of Kalyvan.

Michael Strogoff was running across the plain, trying to reach the cover of some trees scattered here and there, when a detachment of Tartar cavalry appeared on the right.

Michael Strogoff could no longer go in that direction. The horsemen advanced rapidly toward the city, and it was difficult for him to escape. Suddenly at the corner of a thicket he saw a house which he might perhaps reach unperceived.

To run, to hide himself, to ask and to take there, if need be, something to renew his strength, for he was exhausted with fatigue and hunger, was Michael Strogoff's only resource. He fled then to this shelter, and, drawing near, he perceived that it was a telegraph station. Two wires were going east and west, and a third was stretched toward Kalyvan.

One would suppose that under the circumstances that station would have been abandoned, but as it was Michael Strogoff could find there a refuge, wait for the night if need be to travel again across the steppe which was searched by the Tartar pickets.

Michael Strogoff hurried toward the door of that house and opened it hastily. A single person was in the room where the dispatches were written. He was an employee, calm, cool, indifferent to all that was going on outside. Faithful to his post, he waited behind his window for the public to claim his services.

Michael Strogoff went to him and with a voice broken by fatigue asked: "What do you know?"

"Nothing," answered the employee, smiling.

"Are the Russians and Tartars fighting?"

"People say so."

"But who are the victors?"

"I don't know."

So much coolness in the midst of these terrible occurrences, so much indifference even, was hardly possible.

"And is not the wire cut?" asked Michael Strogoff.

"It is cut between Kalyvan and Krasnolarsk, but it works yet between Kalyvan and the Russian frontier."

"For the government?"

"For the government when they think it proper, for the public when they pay. It is 10 copecks a word. I wait your orders, sir."

Michael Strogoff was going to answer that strange operator that he had no dispatch to send; that he wanted only a little bread and water, when suddenly the door of the house was abruptly opened.

Michael Strogoff thought the office invaded by the Tartars and was about to jump through the window when he noticed that two men only entered the room and that they were far from being Tartar soldiers.

One of them held a dispatch written in pencil, and, outrunning the other, he was at the window of the telegraph office. In those two men Michael Strogoff was astonished to discover two persons he had thought never to see again. They were the correspondents Harry Blount and Alcide Jolivet, no more traveling companions, but rivals, enemies, now that they were operating on the battlefield.

They had left Ichim a few hours only after the departure of Michael Strogoff, and if they arrived before him at Kalyvan in following the same route it was because Michael Strogoff had lost three days on the borders of the Irish. And now, after having witnessed the battle between the Russians and the Tartars in front of the city, leaving the city when the struggle was still going on in the streets, they had to run to the station to send away their dispatches to Europe, each seeking to rob the other of priority in describing the stirring events.

Michael Strogoff kept at a distance in the shadow, and without being seen he could see all and hear all. He was probably about to learn important news and know if he ought to enter Kalyvan or not.

Harry Blount, more alert than his colleague, had possession of the window and handed in his dispatch, while Alcide Jolivet, contrary to his habits, stopped impatiently. "Ten copecks a word," said the operator, taking the dispatch.

Harry Blount placed a pile of rubles on the counter, his confere looking at him somewhat stupefied.

"Well," said the employee, and with undisturbed sang froid he commenced to telegraph the following dispatch:

Daily Telegraph, London:
From Kalyvan, Government of Omak, Siberia, Aug. 6.—Engagement of Russian troops with Tartars.

That reading being made aloud, Michael Strogoff could hear all the English correspondent addressed to his paper.

Russian troops repulsed with great losses. Tartars enter Kalyvan this day.

These words ended the dispatch.

"My turn now," said Alcide Jolivet, who tried to pass his dispatch addressed to his cousin of the Montmartre Faubourg.

But that did not suit the English reporter, who thought of remaining at the window as long as he should have news to transmit, as fast as fresh events might occur, so he did not give place to his confere.

"You are through?" cried Alcide Jolivet.

"I am not through," simply answered Harry Blount.

And he went on writing words which he passed to the operator, who read very quietly:

In the beginning God created heaven and earth.

They were verses from the Bible Harry Blount was telegraphing to gain time and not give place to his rival. That would probably cost a few thousand rubles to his paper, but his paper would have the first information. France might wait.

Think of the anger of Alcide Jolivet, who under any other circumstances would have appreciated the joke. He even insisted that the operator should take his dispatches in preference to those of his confere.

"That is the right of the gentleman," said the employee coolly, pointing to Harry Blount, smiling kindly to him.

And he continued to transmit to The Daily Telegraph the first book of the holy writ.

While he was operating Harry Blount went to the window, and with his glass he observed what was going on about Kalyvan, so as to complete his information.

A few minutes later he took his place again at the office window and added to his telegram:

Two churches in flames. The fire seems to gain on the right. The earth was without form and void. Darkness covered the face of the earth.

Alcide Jolivet had simply a ferocious desire to strangle the honorable reporter of The Daily Telegraph.

He once more called upon the employee, who again coolly answered:

"It is his right, sir; it is his right. Ten copecks a word."

And he telegraphed the following news, handed him by Blount:

Russian refugees escape the city. And God said, "Let there be light, and there was light."

Alcide Jolivet was literally transported with rage.

Meanwhile Harry Blount was again at the outside window, but this time, absentmindedly probably on account of the spectacle he saw, he made his observations too long. So when the operator had finished sending the third verse of the Bible Alcide Jolivet quietly took his place at the wicket and, as his colleague had done, placed a respectable pile of rubles on the desk and handed his dispatch, which the employee read aloud:

Madeleine Jolivet, 10 Faubourg Montmartre, Paris: Kalyvan, Government of Omak, Aug. 6.—Runaways fly from the city. Russians beaten. Furious pursuit by the Tartars.

And when Harry Blount came back he heard Alcide Jolivet completing his telegram, singing musically with mockery:

"There was a little man all dressed in gray, in Paris."

Alcide Jolivet thought it better not to mix sacred things with profane as his colleague had done, and he answered by a joyful chorus of Beranger to the verses of the Bible.

At that moment a commotion shook the telegraph office. A shell had entered the wall, and a cloud of dust filled the waiting room.

Alcide Jolivet was just finishing his verse, "as red as an apple, who, without a penny," but without stopping threw himself on the shell, took it in his hands before it exploded, threw it out of the window and came back to the wicket. It was all done in an instant.

In five seconds the shell burst outside.

Then, continuing his telegram with perfect coolness, Alcide Jolivet wrote:

A shell of sixty pounds' weight has burst through the wall of the telegraph office. Expert some others of same caliber.

THE HOSE MUDDLE

Everybody has heard more than enough of the hose deal, and all are familiar with the Hose Muddle generally, but only a few people perhaps have thoroughly realized the seriousness of the situation. The dilatory and boyish methods of our city officials suggests a state of "blissful ignorance" of their duty and the great responsibility resting upon them. It is truly a terrible state of affairs to contemplate! A city of over twenty-three thousand inhabitants for several months at a time without the necessary protection of hose. It is besides very humiliating to our people to have these bare facts echoed and re-echoed through every state in the union. What a sensational news item—"Paducah, a second-class city, the pride of the purchase, the metropolis of the Pennyroyal District, almost absolutely without hose." It is enough to suddenly check the onward march of our prosperity and stun for years the rapid growth of our progressive (?) city. But we must not despair. "There's a gleam through the gloom." We hear our hustling newsboys "chanting" this refrain:

"Rejoice! A glad some shout rings out on the air. Our city dads have bought at last some hose without a 'swear.' This is some relief. They swore all over one hose deal. It failed as it should. Well balanced people should never have to swear about hose. But the new hose won't settle the trouble. Our people won't be satisfied with cotton hose at 49c a foot. If woman's rights prevailed, a large number of our city officials would be calmly retired to the restful shades of Oblivion. Nothing but cotton hose! They may suit some, but many will protest. We respectfully suggest that every family buy hose for themselves, where they can close a satisfactory deal. With this end in view, and in order to co-operate with the people in this emergency we will open a Hose Sale on Monday, August the 4th, also a clean sweep sale on all summer fabrics and furnishing goods. THAT HEATING FRANCHISE.

The Ordinance Committee of General Council Met Last Night.

Revised Franchise Ordinance, But it May Not Be Acceptable.

The ordinance committee of the general council met last night and went over the steam heating franchise that was passed by the councilmanic board a few weeks ago and turned down by the board of aldermen on the pretext that the ordinance was not in proper shape.

A number of changes were made, but the only one of importance was giving the company right to cross Broadway. It was desired by the projectors that the pipes be laid across Broadway wherever necessary, but the committee modified it by allowing them to cross in only two places, at Third and Broadway and Fourth and Broadway. The ordinance has been submitted to Judge Lightfoot, attorney for the gentleman who wants the franchise, and if satisfactory will be passed as it is.

Judge Lightfoot was asked today if the ordinance would be satisfactory and replied that he has not examined it, but that if it allowed the pipes to cross Broadway at only two places, the ordinance would not be satisfactory, as it would be impossible to construct the plant under those restrictions.

It is the intention of the company to furnish heat in winter and cold air through the same pipes in the summer.

Tucker, grocery store, loss $150.

A VERY GLOOMY CROWD.

The Illinois Central Picnic Marred by Accident.

The Baseball Game Was Won by the Ironworkers, Score 10 to 6.

The I. C. employees' picnic was a success up until the time of the horrible accident and after that everything was stopped and the merry making was ceased for the remainder of the day.

Every one seemed to have been silenced by the accident and a more gloomy crowd could not have been found than that coming in on the excursion train.

The only sport that was held in the afternoon was the baseball game between the Woodworkers and the Ironworkers, the game resulting in a victory for the latter by a score of 6 to 10.

Mike Conroy pitched the game for the victorious team and Jerome Smith caught the game. For the Woodworkers Sutherland handled the sphere and Charles Jones caught the game. Conroy's arm gave out in the fifth inning and up until that time the Woodworkers had not made a run. He held out the remainder of the game while the opposing side made a change and worked two pitchers.

It has been rumored that as a result of the accident that there will be no more I. C. employees picnics held. An official was asked about the matter this morning and he stated that it could not be discussed now. Another intimated that he thought the site badly selected and that the picnics will hereafter be held but will not be held near the railroad track.

Miss Fannie Baxter has gone to Evansville.
